Dear Mr. Umunna:

Your letter came as a pleasant surprise. I am very happy that you have been able to enroll in a university in the United States. I am grateful that you thought enough of me to write.

My family and I have been very busy re-adjusting to the hustle and bustle of making a living here in the States. I have changed jobs. I am no longer serving as Dean of Students at this university but devoted to full-time teaching.

My wife joins me in wishing you success in pursuing your MA degree requirements. In fact, we both hope that you will do so well that you can remain to matriculate for the PhD.

Nigeria will always have a soft spot in our hearts and we shall cherish the fond memories we have of your country.

If you are ever in this part of the country, please look us up.

Sincerely,

B. L. Perry, Jr
