

WORK, MONROE NATHAN, Educator; Born, Iredell County, N.C. Ph. B. University of Chicago, 1902, A.M.; 1903; Professor pedagogy and history, Georgia State Industrial College, Savannah, Georgia, 1903-1908; Director Department of Records and Research, Tuskegee Institute, Alabama, since 1908. Member International Institute of African Languages and Cultures, American Sociological Society, American Statistical Association, American Economic Association, American Academy of Political and Social Science, Association for the Study of Negro Life and History, American Association for the Advancement of Science, Pi Gamma Mu, The National Social Science Honor Society, American Negro Academy, Southern Economic Association, Southern HISTORICAL Association, Southern Sociological Society, A.M.E. Church. Founder, 1912, and since editor of Negro Year Book; editor and compiler of Bibliography of the Negro in Africa and America, 1928. Developed bureau of information relating to the Negro. In 1928 he was awarded the Harmon Award in education, a gold medal and $400, for scholarly research and educational publicity through his periodic compilation and publication of the Negro Year Book and his recent exhaustive "Bibliography of the Negro in Africa and America."